

Serving Better life to Mankind through Empowerment

Dreaming is said to uncover our sub conscious goals for accomplishment, as we have learned through our personal experiences and study. Students frequently have ambitions to flourish in their chosen field, but unanticipated financial obstacles are likely to derail their plans.

In this backdrop, an agriculture graduate from Annamalai University, Chidambaram had an ambition to win the civil service exam, but owing to financial constraints, she was unable to attend the coaching session. This issue was brought to the attention of the Chennai-based Hurricane Vets Charitable Trust.

The Board of Trustees, in consultation with the donors, agreed to fund the girl's preparation for the civil service test for ten months, beginning in December 2021, and to continue the sponsorship if she qualifies the preliminary exams. Our gratitude to Dr.S.Vigil Anbiah, EC member, HVCT for co-ordinating this project.

We are grateful for the monthly support provided by four members of the Hurricane Vets Charitable Trust. The efforts and consent given by the HVCT office bearers are also warmly recognized. The girl's identity has not been published yet to safeguard her privacy, but we would be pleased to share it after she has successfully entered the civil service.
